Providing equitable and excellent education for all students is a challenge that all educators should address. School administrators need to consider how their school or district applies a social justice lens to instruction, curriculum, school policies, resources, and data analysis.

At this free informational session, Dr. Hairston will discuss CREC's professional development approach. It is data-driven, specific, and intentional, and strategically engages members of the school community in the school's transformation.

CREC's scope of professional development training is offered to districts to support social justice and racial equity and includes:

- Face-to-face and Online Learning Module Platform
- Social Justice and Equity Audits
- Social Justice and Equity Curriculum Review, Revision, and Implementation
- Executive Coaching for Leaders
